

RECORD 1979

Think, you've been one of the special friends that I know. With you I don't really have to explain anything. I know that you're a most intelligent person & I know I'm sure you and I are on an understanding about me and don't expect me like a freak. I admit that greatly in you. I'll agree most of the people you know I still available to all the most shapely & hot that I'll agree for you, so get him. You know I can't I should have somebody with the summer. I will there's always that I greatly needed. I love you dearly as a friend. Stay beautiful, inside and out and I'll see you in September. Love Brock

Dear Nina,
 How are you, this been as but that do
 T. 10

Dear Nina,

How are you? Well, anyway, this year we haven't been as close as last year, but that doesn't mean that I like you less or consider you less of a friend to me.
I hope next year we will be as close as we were before because you are a true friend to me.

I hope that in the past
I have helped you as much as you have helped me.

Take care over the summer and I'll see you next year.

Love,
Kym

An aerial photograph of a city street scene. In the foreground, a large, multi-story brick building is under construction, with its roof partially covered in dirt and debris. Several construction workers are visible on the roof. To the right of the building, a sidewalk runs along the street, with a few small trees and a street lamp. In the background, a tall, modern skyscraper with a grid-like facade of windows dominates the left side of the frame. To the right of the skyscraper, a smaller, older building with a flat roof and several windows is visible. The overall scene suggests a city in the process of development or renovation.

Faster than a speeding radical,
Stronger than a square root,
Able to do a word problem with a single piece of chalk,
It's Super Spaz!
Yes, that fearless foe of math anxiety and total ignorance.

Three years ago, an innocent young teacher came to Friends Select to spread her knowledge. In the beginning we found her to be quite, well . . . odd. Her enthusiasm over mathematics astounded us; she seemed to become intoxicated by square roots and word problems. Possibly, it is some long-hidden psychotic complex, but we will not dwell on this. Time passed, and we soon found her to be more than just an over-zealous (perhaps even rabid) mathematical phanatic. Once, just once, she even spent a whole class period telling us about her engagement while showing off her ring, of course. When, after her first year, she mysteriously appeared in the administration, we found we had a good friend in a high place. It soon became extremely difficult to pass by her room without stopping to chat; topics ranged from basic school gossip, to Irish culture, to the 'good old days at St. Joe's.

So we, the class of '79, dedicate our yearbook to a person who has been understanding when we needed a friend, cheerful when we needed a laugh, and in general, a whole lot of fun, Tr. Pat Noonan.

There once was a Teacher named Jane who loved to vacation in Maine but during the year
 she's full of good cheer and helps us again and again

So often we've sought out her aid with problems and not been dismayed she knows where to look when you want a good book
 what we owe her can never be paid

Without you as a teacher, many of us would not have made it through chemistry and physics. You taught us the practical uses of the slinky and how to blow bubbles scientifically. You effectively quieted us down, in your quiet manner, not by yelling, but by dropping a yard stick with a bang on the table. You are a truly wise, warm and wonderful person, thank you Master Wilbert.

Uh oh . . . immigration.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr Hoffman

I have enclosed a bill for the complete destruction of my restaurant

On the night of February 15th, nine of your students entered my establishment. They came in arguing about whether or not to stay. They then argued about where to sit. Some wanted to be near the window, others near the door; still another faction desired to sit near the kitchen. Finally they settled in to some serious arguing, this time about what to order. When their meals arrived, none of them could remember who had ordered what. That's when the food fights began. Let me take this opportunity to describe each one in detail. Perhaps this will help you to hunt them down. I mean help you to recognize them.

By far the oddest of the group was a female in an old black coat who wandered from table to table picking food from the plates of the other customers. They called her "Bagwoman."

Another of the females wore an indecently short brown and gold skirt. Her eyes were glazed and her hands fluttered nervously. Upon seeing the menus, she went into convulsions and repeated over and over "graphically incorrect . . . graphically incorrect."

The male members of the group were equally odd. One of them insisted on arranging the other diners in a multitude of bizarre poses, all the while chanting "arty . . . arty . . . arty." Occasionally he would mumble something about mold, and fix a member of their group with a piercing stare, causing the others to giggle hysterically.

Meanwhile, another one reduced three waitresses to tears and shredded the uniform of a fourth. Twice he grabbed the floral arrangement, dribbled it to the end of the room and proceeded to dunk it into the back booth. He spent the rest of the night on the floor staring up at passing skirts.

During all this, one of the other females wandered through the tables watching the other customers eat, often pinning safety pins to their clothing. Occasionally she would attack members of their group, wrestle them to the floor and pull their hair. At one point in the evening she began repeating the name "Stuart", and a look of complete rapture came over her face. This went on for at least an hour.

Another female returned eight forks, claiming they were unsanitary and that the germs were "out to get her". She was referred to as the "Ivory soap girl." And although I don't think she carried hidden soap, I am certain that she had alcoholic beverages secreted on her person. By the end of the evening, she was completely intoxicated and would break into gales of laughter at the mere mention of the word "Swarthmore."

Perhaps the most bizarre ritual was the "Turco chant". Except for one of the males, the whole group would pound on the table and chant "We want Turco." Meanwhile this one fellow would hide under the table and refuse to come out, no matter how they chanted. Occasionally he and the "Bagwoman" threw knives at each other. They killed off three of my best patrons in this manner.

When asked about payment for their "meal", the group would chant "Alan, Alan, Alan . . ." and point to the fellow who was picking up the tips at the other tables. This fellow kept muttering something about "one-liners." However, he was extremely well dressed in new and expensive clothes.

The last member of this group spent the evening reading French fashion magazines and eating sunflower seeds. She soon fell asleep. When the others noticed, they promptly devoured the remaining sunflower seeds.

It was hard to miss them, but at some point in the evening they all slipped out without my noticing. All they left was this book. I am keeping it in payment of their bill.

Sincerely
Jacques LeBreque

Dear Mr. Turco,
We acknowledge your letter reserving a space for a Miss Wendy Harnwell. From your description of her present state of mind, we agree that it will be necessary to arrange for a private room. To answer your question, Mr. Turco, all our rooms are completely padded and escape-proof. We do include psychiatric counseling. We hope to see her soon.

I believe that by being all else I am a reasonable human being just as you are—or, for all events, that I must try and become one. I know I quite well. For I know that most people would think you right and that views of that kind are to be found in books, but I can no longer content myself with what is found in books. I must think over things for myself and get to understand them.

I USE TO BE A GIRL

I use to be a girl ...
In fact, I still am ...
With a slight variation
Somewhere along the line I became a woman
And when I did I became less recognized by you
But I am a woman just the same
So you may as well accept me for what I am Even if I can't be your girl anymore ...

Success is speaking words of praise
In cheering other people's ways,
In doing just the best you can
With every task and every plan.
It's silence when your speech would hurt.
Politeness when your neighbor's curt.
It's deafness when the scandal flows.
And sympathy with other's woes.
It's loyalty when duty calls,
It's courage when disaster falls.
It's patience when the hours are long.
It's found in laughter and in song.
It's in the silent time of prayer.
In happiness and in despair.
In all of life and nothing less.
We find the thing we call success.

Summer Nina,

Jerry

Nina, (Jerry)
I thought I must say for most of the day yesterday, I'll be happy to know your letter.
I really enjoyed the couple of letters I received. For some reason I don't know, I don't know if this is the place to say it, but I don't worry about you, you don't even tell yourself anything.
It also speaks to me when I think of you as a person who refuse to be honest about it if you would be.

NEGATIVE

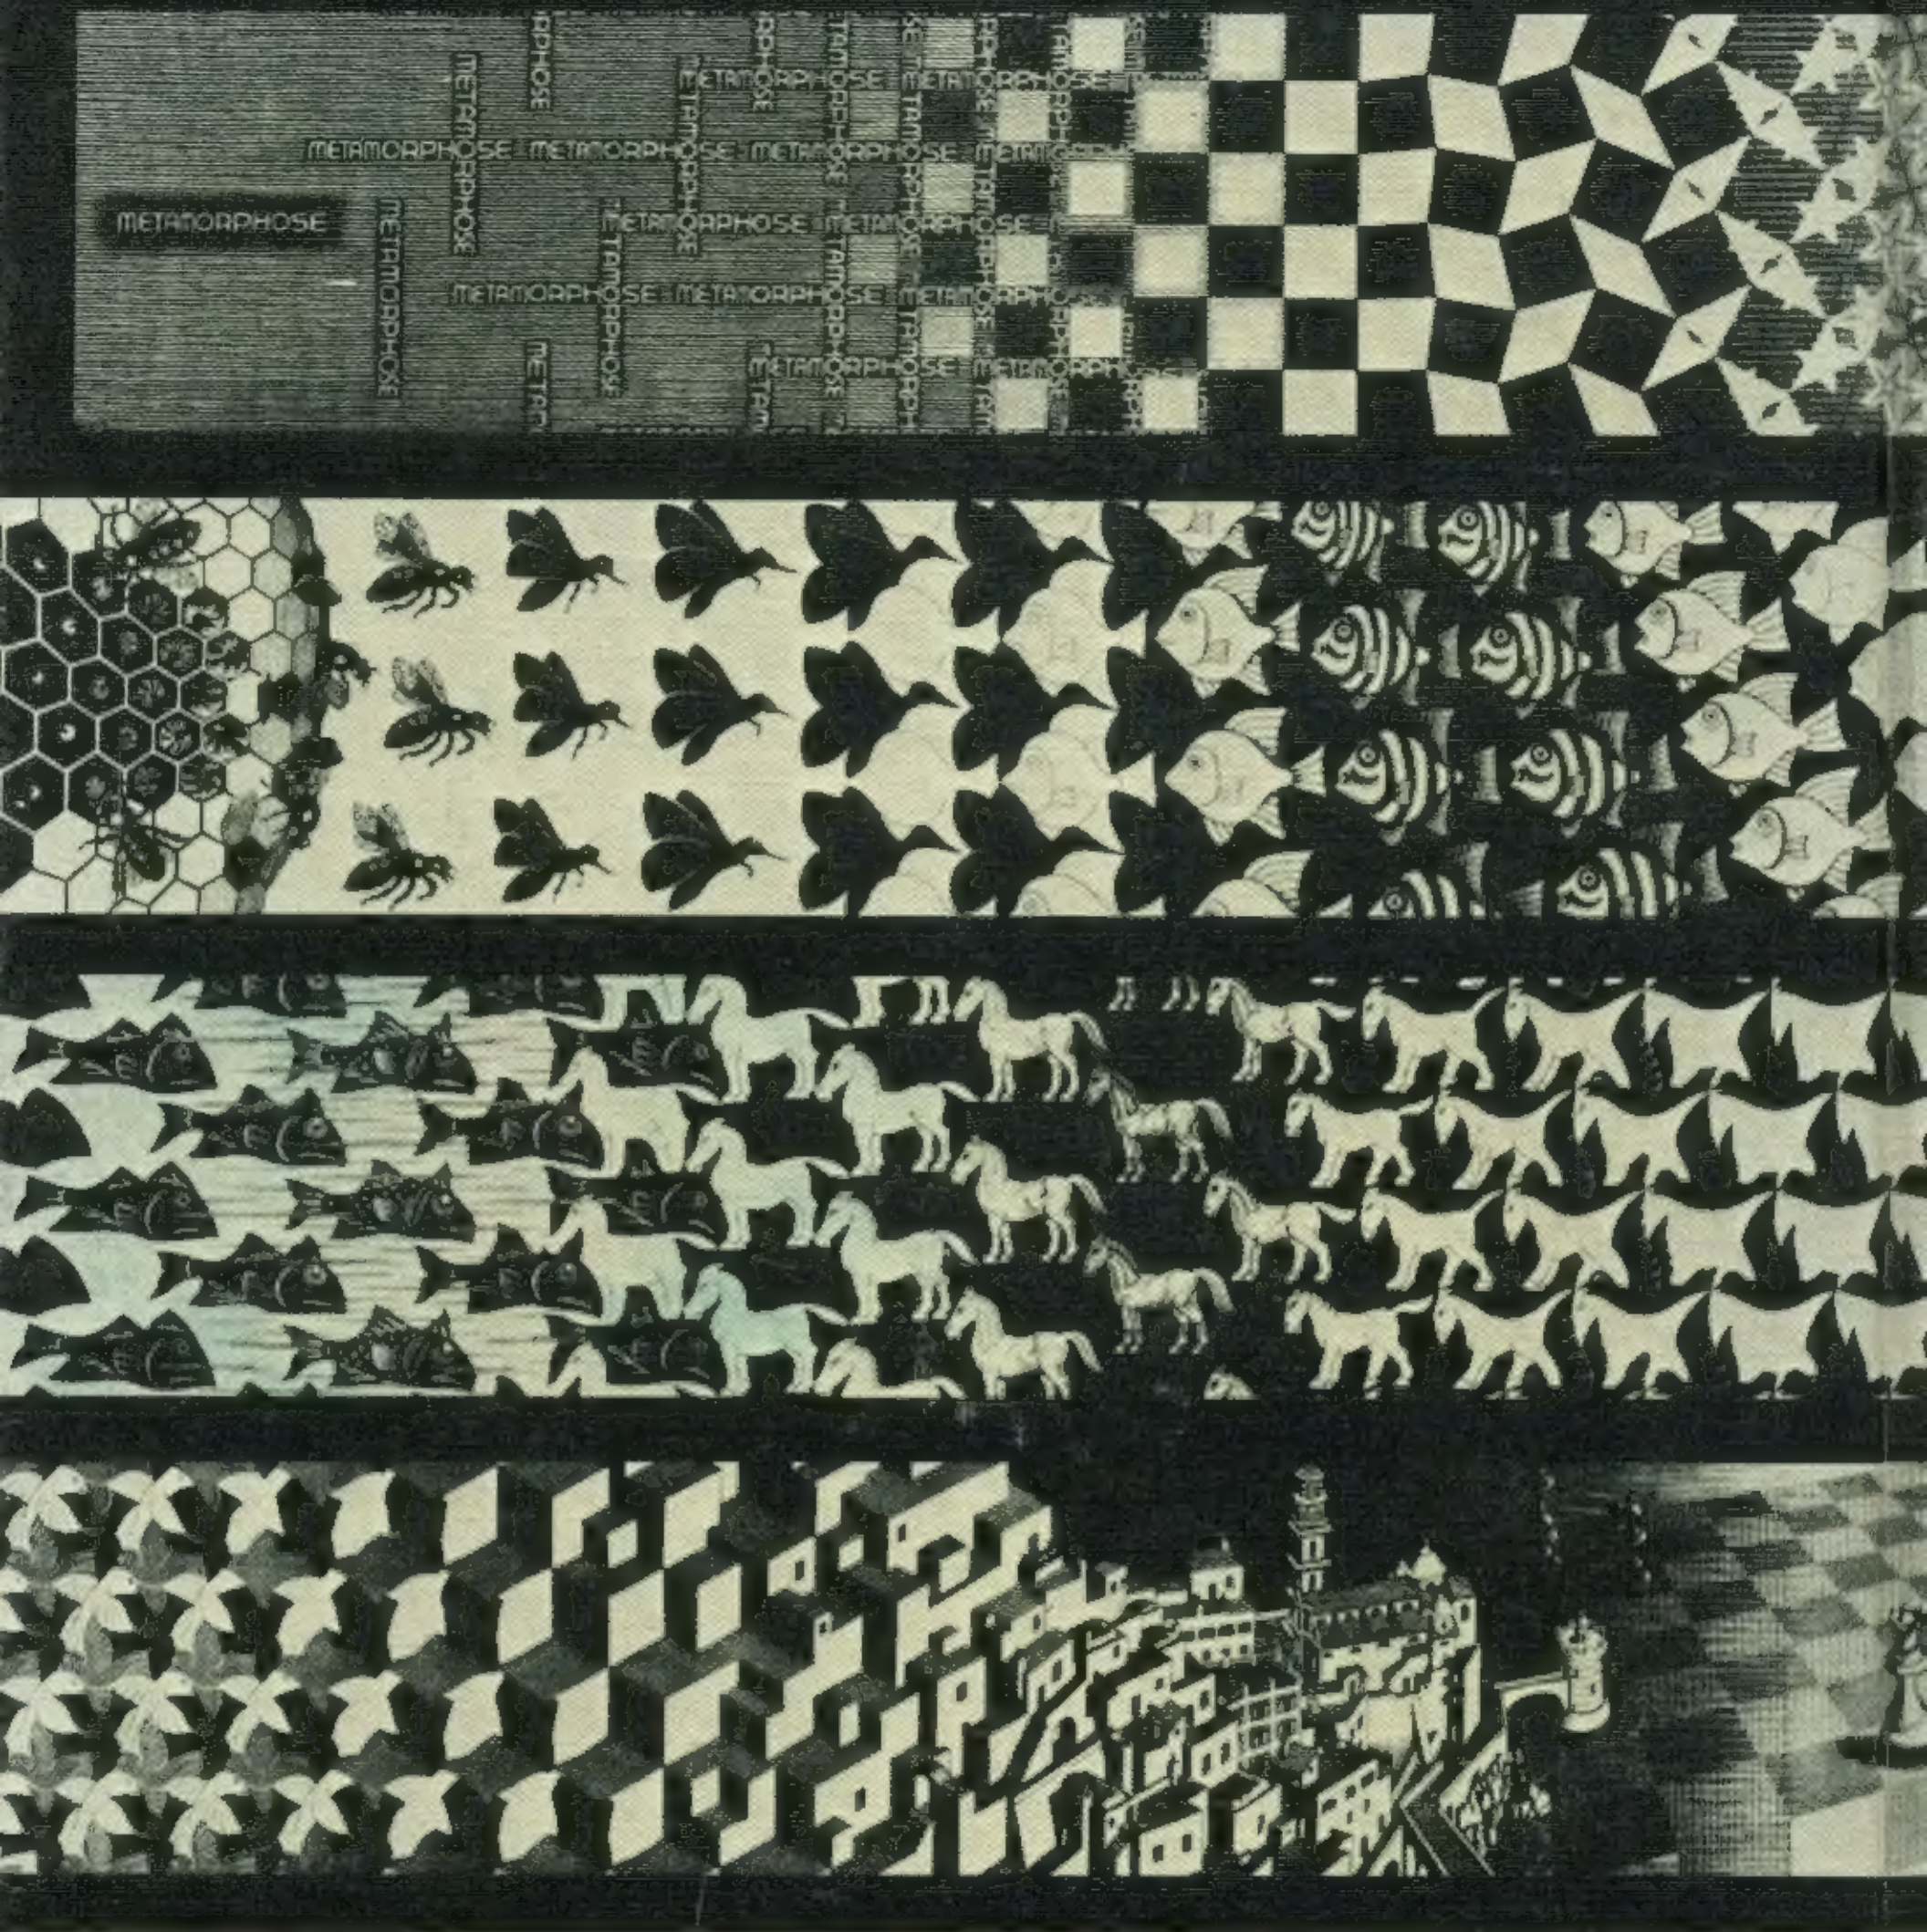

Dear Nina,

What can I say except that I love you. I know that you don't believe that because of the way I have treated you lately at let me try and explain. Whenever I even just talk to you or think about you, I get an erection I am very attracted to you and would like to go out with you. But at this point not steadily. I love you too much to hurt you by letting you get more involved with me than I with you. I really will miss you over the summer.

Please

Love
always
Peter
